

Role Play on “Power of the People: A Mock Election Commission”

23rd January, 2025

The role-playing activity aimed to educate students about the functioning, responsibilities, and significance of the Election Commission in a democratic setup. It provided a hands-on experience of electoral processes, encouraging civic awareness and active participation.

Students have participated in the activity. A mock electoral setup was created with polling booths, voter lists, ballot boxes, and ID verification desks. Students researched the duties of the Election Commission and prepared scripts for their roles. Voters cast their votes in a simulated polling booth under the supervision of election officers. At last Votes were counted transparently, and results were announced by the Election Commission. Students gained insight into the democratic process and the pivotal role of the Election Commission. The role-playing activity on the Election Commission was a resounding success. Such experiential learning initiatives are vital for nurturing informed and engaged future voters.
