

Ms. Aradhana Jha

Assistant Professor, Department of Education Institute of Vocational Studies

Faculty Profile

Aradhana Jha is an Assistant Professor of Education at the Institute of Vocational Studies, where she has been serving since 2021. She holds an M.A. in English and an M.Ed. She qualified for the UGC-NET in 2020. Her academic and professional interests focus on English education and pedagogy, with particular emphasis on effective teaching-learning practices and the holistic development of student teachers. In her present role, she actively contributes to the teaching-learning process and teach English Pedagogy, helping students develop conceptual understanding, pedagogical skills, and effective classroom practices. Alongside her teaching responsibilities, she is also involved in various administrative, academic and management activities, including student admissions, examination-related work, distribution and coordination of pedagogy subjects. Through her combined experience in teaching, academics and administration, she strives to contribute meaningfully to the academic growth of students and the overall development of the institution.